Drama Workshops for Anger Management and Offending

Anger Management. We understand life can get the best of us sometimes and cause us to lash out at others. Sometimes we rage at the very ones we love and protect: our own families. Training, discipline, the Word of God, and fellowship with like-minded people make it possible to change, grow, and learn to love without lashing out.

Anger Management Workshop – Heart to Heart – India

Recognize the difference between anger and aggression. Although the two are similar and may occur together, anger is an emotion that may result from frustration, low self-esteem or disappointment; whereas aggression is a negative act intended to hurt someone or something. Negative consequences should focus on aggression, and not necessarily anger.
