8. The more devotion, love, care, affection, and effort the empath put into the relationship, the narcissist feels completely in control over the relationship. The empath literally dances to the tune of the narcissist. As long as the empath continues to appease the narcissist, it's impossible to detect any problem in the relationship.

The empath feels like they have met their one true love, and even though the narcissist does not know what true love is, they go along with the ploy. 2. Illusion and control. The narcissist knows you are a strong individual, so they use sneaky manipulation tactics under the guise of “love” and “betterment” to control the relationship

Books For Empaths (28 books) – Goodreads

I just learned that I was in a 2.5 yr relationship with a narcissist! I’m an empath and I too have been brought up in a family where my parents and sibling were selfish and self-centered. I’m always caring for others but never receiving care or love. I had dated narcissists before and I have been working to change my patterns.

Empaths and Narcissists: 2 in 1 Bundle by Judy Dyer

I am a physical and emotional empath who was married to a narcissist for 23-years. This book is a good basic introduction to each condition and why opposites attract. It was easy for me to identify with the examples within the book. The relationship between an empath and a narcissist is very complex, especially when children are involved.

The Reality Of A Toxic Relationship Between An Empath And Narcissist. Empaths and Narcissists are attracted to each other because they mirror each other's shadow sides. They unconsciously project their dark sides and deepest fears onto each other. Empaths don't know that they have a fear of rejection or loss or abandonment.

Empaths and Narcissists: 2 Books in 1: Amazon.co.uk: Dyer

Very helpful in identifying the characteristics of an empath and narcissist. I am an empath and my husband has narcissistic traits. I'm still in my marriage but the book has helped me identify when I am a victim of gaslighting and how to pull myself out of it. Setting boundaries is important and reinforcing them when necessary. Self love is key.
